Report to Heritage Properties Committee
Report Number HP-24-014

To: Chair and Members of the Heritage Properties Committee
From: Jennifer Campbell, Commissioner, Community Services
Resource Staff: Kevin Gibbs, Director, Heritage Services
Date of Meeting: March 20, 2024
Subject: Notice of Intention to Designate under the Ontario Heritage Act

Council Strategic Plan Alignment:

Theme: Corporate business

Goal: See above

Executive Summary:

Section 29 of the Ontario Heritage Act authorizes the Council of a municipality to enact by-laws to designate real property, including all buildings and structures thereon, that demonstrate cultural heritage value or interest. Council shall, before giving notice of its intention to designate a property, consult with its municipal heritage committee.

This report provides background information regarding the evaluation of twelve (12) properties to determine their cultural heritage value and interest. The properties at 1193 Front Road, 123-129 Princess Street, 1359 Unity Road, 26-34 Barrie Street, 2638 Kepler Road, 3578 Unity Road, 62-74 Barrie Street, 9, 11, 22 and 30 Colborne Street, and 37 Kennedy Street were found to exceed the threshold established by the Province of Ontario for Designation under Part IV of the Ontario Heritage Act. It should be noted that portions of the two properties on Barrie Street were previously designated under the Act in 1987. Amendments to those by-laws are being proposed herein to meet the current by-law standards and to include those buildings on the properties that are currently listed but not included in the existing designation.

The owners of the properties listed above have been provided with the draft designation by-laws and general information on heritage designations by registered mail. The owners were also invited to an open house on February 21, 2024, hosted by Heritage Planning staff. The properties meet the provincial criteria for evaluating cultural heritage value as set out in Ontario Regulation 9/06 and are thus recommended for designation.

The Notice of Intention to Designate and draft designation by-laws have been prepared in accordance with the recent amendments to the Ontario Heritage Act. Staff recommend serving Notice of Intention to Designate on the subject properties to ensure their conservation and to enable the City to provide support and resources to owners and tenants through the heritage permitting process and the Heritage Property Grant Program.

Recommendation:

That Kingston Heritage Properties Committee recommends to Council:

That Council direct staff to serve a Notice of Intention to Designate the property located at 1193 Front Road, known as the Grass House, as a property of cultural heritage value or interest pursuant to Section 29 of the Ontario Heritage Act, attached as Exhibit A to Report Number HP-24-014; and

Options/Discussion:

This report provides background information regarding the reasons for designating the following twelve (12) properties, in order to conserve their cultural heritage value and interest. This report recommends serving a Notice of Intention to Designate (Exhibit A) under Section 29 of the Ontario Heritage Act on the following properties:

- 1193 Front Road, known as the Charles Grass House (R01-xx-2024);
- 123-129 Princess Street, known as Foster Building (R01-xx-2024);
- 1359 Unity Road, known as the Hunter Farmhouse (R01-xx-2024);
- 26-34 Barrie Street, known as the Cappon House, Bibby House & Strange House (R01-xx-2024);
- 2638 Kepler Road, known as the Powley Farmhouse (R01-xx-2024);
- 3578 Unity Road, known as the Raycroft Farmhouse (R01-xx-2024);
- 62-74 Barrie Street, known as the Chown, Doran, Robinson, Mooers & Walkem Houses (R01-xx-2024);
- 9 Colborne Street (R01-002-2020);
- 11 Colborne Street (R01-003-2020);
- 22 Colborne Street (R01-xx-2024);
- 30 Colborne Street, known as the Queen Street Methodist Church Parsonage (R01-xx-2024); and
- 37 Kennedy Street, known as the Henley Cameron House (R01-xx-2024).

Two of the properties noted above, namely 26-34 Barrie Street and 62-74 Barrie Street, include multiple buildings on a single lot. In 1987, 34 Barrie and 72-74 Barrie were designated under Part IV of the Ontario Heritage Act through By-Law Number 87-322. The current designation does not extend beyond the boundaries of the then (1987) lot configuration. Further, the 1987 by-law does not conform to the current requirements for designation by-laws under the recently amended Act. As part of this process, staff are recommending an amendment be made to By-Law Number 87-322 to broaden the reasons for designation to include all buildings of cultural heritage value on the sites and to bring the by-law into conformity with the current Act.

Section 29 of the Ontario Heritage Act authorizes the Council of a Municipality to enact by-laws to designate real property, including all buildings and structures thereon, to be of cultural heritage value or interest. Section 30 of the Ontario Heritage Act authorizes the Council of a municipality to amend by-laws previously enacted under Section 29 of the Act. Council shall, before giving notice of its intention to designate a property or amend a by-law, consult with its Municipal Heritage Committee when the Council of a municipality has appointed a Municipal Heritage Committee (Kingston Heritage Properties Committee).

Background

Through Report Number HP-23-018, staff were directed to undertake the disposition of listed properties on the City of Kingston Heritage Register. The twelve (12) properties noted here are part of the disposition process whereby staff are evaluating, reviewing and advancing for designation those currently listed properties that meet at least two of the Provincial Criteria for Determining Cultural Heritage Value or Interest (Ontario Regulation 9/06).

Process

The process for designation is outlined in detail in Report Number HK-21-004. The 2020 changes to the Ontario Heritage Act created a new two-tier appeal process for new and amended designations. Following consultation with its heritage committee, Council can choose to serve a notice of its intention to designate a property under Section 29 or amend an existing designation by-law under Section 30 of the Ontario Heritage Act on the property owner(s) and the Ontario Heritage Trust and publish a notice in the newspaper. Within 30 days of the publication of the notice in the newspaper, anyone can object by providing a notice of objection to the City Clerk.

Any notice of objection received by the Clerk's office is then sent to City Council for consideration. Council has 90 days to decide if it wishes to withdraw its Notice of Intention to Designate/amend or not. Its decision is required to be served on the owner(s) and be published in the newspaper in the form of either a Notice of Passing (after giving final reading to the by-law) or a Notice of Withdrawal.

Regardless of whether an objection is received or not, the public is afforded a second opportunity to appeal the designation to the Ontario Land Tribunal within 30 days of the publication of the Notice of Passing. The Tribunal will review the appeal, hold a hearing and render a binding decision on the fate and content of the designation.

Analysis

The twelve (12) properties being advanced for heritage designation are currently included on the City of Kingston Heritage Register as non-designated properties of cultural heritage value (also known as Listed properties). Council listed 123-129 Princess Street, 26-34 Barrie Street, 62-74 Barrie Street, 22 and 30 Colborne Streets and 37 Kennedy Street in 2010. 1193 Front Road, 1359 Unity Road, 2638 Kepler Road, 3578 Unity Road and 9 and 11 Colborne Streets were listed in 2016.

As required by the recent (2022) updates to the Ontario Heritage Act, the properties were evaluated against the 'Criteria for Determining Cultural Heritage Value or Interest' in Ontario Regulation 9/06, which requires each property to meet at least two (2) of the nine (9) criteria to be considered for designation under the Act. It was determined that these properties satisfied two or more of the Regulation's evaluation criteria and accordingly met the requirements for designation under the Act, as described below.

All by-laws were prepared by staff or the consulting firm Heritage Studios. The Heritage Properties Working Group has reviewed the draft by-laws and supports the designation of the subject properties as properties of cultural heritage value and interest. The full statements of significance, including lists of attributes are included in the draft designation by-laws attached as Exhibits B through L. Photographs of each property are included in Exhibit M.

Once designated, the subject properties are eligible for the Heritage Property Grant Program and owners will be able to apply for funding of up to $5,000 for eligible restoration works once every two years.

Public Engagement

All owners were contacted by registered mail on February 6, 2024. Included with the cover letter was a copy of the draft by-law and an information sheet on heritage designations. A public open house meeting was held on February 21, 2024, hosted by Heritage Planning staff, in the Heritage Resource Centre at City Hall. Three property owners and two members of the public attended the open house to ask questions regarding the process and implications of heritage designation. While property owners are not required to support the designation for it to move forward, feedback received from the owners is considered and added to the draft by-laws as appropriate. Staff received no written objections at the time of writing this report.

Conclusion

Staff recommend proceeding with serving the Notice of Intention to Designate the twelve (12) properties noted above. Exhibit A presents the Notice of Intention to Designate/Notice of Proposed Amendment, prepared in accordance with the requirements of the Ontario Heritage Act, for both publication in The Whig Standard newspaper and a more detailed notice to be published on the City's website.

It is recommended that the Notice be served by the Clerk as required by Sections 29(3) and (4) of the Act. Should no notice of objection be received by the Clerk within the thirty (30) day timeframe, staff recommends that Council approve the draft designation by-laws, attached as Exhibits B through L, and serve a Notice of Passing in accordance with Section 29(8) of the Act.

Notice of Intention to Pass/Amend By-Laws to Designate
The following properties to be of Cultural Heritage Value and Interest Pursuant to the Provisions of the Ontario Heritage Act (R.S.O. 1990, Chapter 0.18)

Take Notice that the Council of The Corporation of the City of Kingston intends to pass by-laws under Section 29 of the Ontario Heritage Act, R.S.O. 1990, Chapter 0.18, to designate the following lands to be of cultural heritage value and interest:

1193 Front Road (Part Lot 2-3 Con Broken Front Kingston as in FR206281; City of Kingston, County of Frontenac), known as the Charles Grass House;

The Charles Grass House is situated on the south side of the road, in the former Township of Kingston, now the City of Kingston. The approximately 3.7-hectare waterfront parcel contains a two-storey residence with Italianate elements, constructed in the late 1860s. The Italianate style is rare in Kingston Township, making the Grass House a rare example of a two-storey 'L'-shaped house with Italianate influences in this part of Kingston. Typical of the Italianate style is the rectangular massing, hip roof with cornice brackets and the paired arched windows on the front façade. The Grass House is associated Charles Grass and family. The Grass family is associated with the settlement of United Empire Loyalists at Cataraqui and is understood to be one of the first settlers in the former Township of Kingston. Its heritage attributes include the two-storey limestone house with one storey addition, its hip roof, cornice brackets, three chimneys, hip-roofed porch and original fenestration pattern.

123-129 Princess Street (Part Lots 222 & 229 Original Survey, T/W Interest in FR91600; City of Kingston, County of Frontenac), known as the Foster Building;

The Foster Building is located on the north side of Princess Street on the block bound by Bagot, Queen and Wellington streets in downtown Kingston. The approximately 580 square metre property contains a three-storey Georgian commercial row, constructed in 1854 for local businessman, Abraham Foster. The Foster Building is a representative example of a mid 19th century Georgian commercial row in downtown Kingston. Its simple three-storey massing with 6 bays, restrained architectural detailing (i.e. coursed, squared and smooth ashlar dressed limestone masonry façade, stone windowsills, flat headed window openings with stone voussoirs, stone cornice with rolled molding and brackets), and the overall impression of balance and symmetry is typical of 19th century Georgian commercial rows on downtown main streets in Ontario. With its three-storey scale, limestone construction and setback close to the street, the Foster Building has contextual value for its role in supporting and maintaining the historic commercial character of Princess Street and downtown Kingston. The property also has contextual value for its continuity of roofline, window lines and Georgian commercial style, which link this property physically and visually to this block of Princess Street, including the flanking 19th century stone buildings. Its heritage attributes include the three-storey limestone building with original window openings and stone cornice.

1359 Unity Road (Part Lot 27 Con 5 Kingston as in FR571998; City of Kingston, County of Frontenac), known as the Hunter Farmhouse:

The Hunter Farmhouse is situated on the south side of the road, east of Perth Road, in the former Township of Kingston, now part of the City of Kingston. This 0.2-hectare rural residential property contains a one-and-a-half storey Ontario vernacular brick farmhouse, built circa 1862 for the Hunter family. The Hunter Farmhouse is a representative example of a 19th century one-and-a-half storey Georgian influenced Ontario vernacular brick farmhouse. The symmetrical front façade characterized by a central entrance flanked by windows under a medium-pitched gable roof and single brick chimney is representative of the Georgian style dwelling. George and Sarah Hunter built the house and worked the land for over 40 years. The Hunter Farmhouse was the local post office with George Hunter as the Glenburnie Postmaster from 1867 until 1886. Its heritage attributes include the one-and-a-half storey brick building with its gable roof, central gable and original openings.

26-34 Barrie Street (Part Lots 1-3 Plan Sampson Subdivision Kingston City; Part Farm Lot 24 Block E Con 1 Kingston as in FR256272, FR183171, FR426331 Except Parts 6 & 7 13R16366; T/W FR624859; T/W FR256272; S/T FR728445; T/W FR728446; City of Kingston, County of Frontenac), known as the Cappon, Bibby and Strange Houses:

The property is located on the west side of Barrie Street, at the north-west intersection with Okill Street, adjacent to City Park, in the City of Kingston. This 1,400 square metre property contains two detached brick residences, namely the Cappon House at 26 Barrie built in 1897 and the Bibby House at 28 Barrie built in 1913, and one half of a semi-detached brick residence known as the Strange House at 34 Barrie constructed circa 1890.

The Cappon House (26 Barrie Street), built for James Cappon in 1897, has design value as an example of a late 19th century Victorian residence with a distinctive Queen Anne Style influence. The red brick masonry construction with limestone foundation and tall window openings with segmental arches and limestone sills are typical of its 1897 construction date, while a distinctive Queen Anne influence is expressed through its two-and-a-half storey asymmetrical massing, which includes a truncated hip roof with two large projecting bay windows with pedimented gables, as well as decorative wood detailing and the oval window on the Okill Street elevation. The two pedimented gables are clad in wooden shingles and supported by large, finely decorated wooden brackets. Each gable contains an original sliding sash window in the Queen Anne Style (i.e. divided lights in the upper sash over single light in the lower sash), which are framed by decorative columns and topped with a pediment. The Cappon House is association with the local architect Arthur Ellis. Ellis' commissions included such notable (now lost) Kingston buildings as the YMCA building at Princess and Barrie and the original 1896 Frontenac Public School. The Cappon House is representative of the style of house and use of red brick that appears to be Ellis's preferred medium. Its heritage attributes include the asymmetrical two-and-a-half storey red brick building, with three chimneys, original openings with a number of original windows and doors, and several wooden architectural features.

The Bibby House (28 Barrie Street), built for H.D. Bibby in 1913, has design value as a rare and eclectic example of the Foursquare Style dwelling. The house's two-and-a-half storey cubic massing and hipped roof are defining features of this style, but its overall architectural expression is more elaborate than a typical Foursquare residence, owing to several design elements unusual for examples of the style. For example, the hip roof has exceptionally deep overhanging eaves with wooden soffit, and frieze board with architrave. Another unusual design feature of this Foursquare is the two-storey full-width side porch, which mirrors the front porch design on the ground floor but includes engaged wooden columns on the second floor. The wooden front door with leaded transom light, including the identification of the street number, is original. The Bibby House is associated with the well-known local architectural firm of Power and Son. The Power and Son firm designed many prominent Kingston landmarks such as McIntosh Castle, Fire Hall No.1 and the Frontenac County Registry Office. The Bibby House was built during the firm's later years under the leadership of Joseph Power. The hipped roof was a favourite of the Power firm to showcase their soaring decorative chimneys; however, the dark brown brick was not a common choice for the company. Heritage attributes include the two-and-a-half storey brown brick dwelling with hip roof, original openings, central and side porches, original front door, and various wooden and brick architectural details.

The Strange House (34 Barrie Street), built for the Strange family by 1890, has design value as an example of Victorian residence that incorporates design elements from a variety of architectural styles, including the Romanesque Revival and Queen Anne Revival Styles. The vertical emphases and proportions of the building's massing (i.e. windows, central projecting bay with gable roof, gabled dormer windows) are Victorian, but the application of the Romanesque Revival and Queen Anne Styles, gives a different architectural expression than is typical of Victorian residences. The front entrance is defined by a Romanesque Revival arch, springing from short piers and providing a covered entrance over both entrances of the semi-detached house. The Queen Anne Style influence is seen in the variety of decorative woodwork and masonry on the façade. The exposed wooden rafters under the eave are an unusual design feature for its construction date; being more typical of the later Arts and Crafts Style. Despite the implementation of a variety of design elements, the building's composition and architectural expression are balanced and harmonious. The Strange House displays a high degree of craftsmanship through the variety of finely executed decorative masonry and woodwork. Decorative masonry on the façade includes a basketweave pattern at the first and second floors of the central projecting bay, a dentilled string course connecting the three pairs of windows on the second floor, raised brick courses framing the paired windows in both rectilinear and curved shapes, and arcade pattern supporting the semi-circular window in the gable. Decorative woodwork is featured on the cornice above the Romanesque Revival arch, which is supported by pairs of decorative brackets, the decorative brackets supporting the eave returns under the gable, the gable itself, which is richly decorated with a lattice pattern and spindles, the exposed wooden rafters and window surrounds. Its heritage attributes include the two-and-a-half storey red brick building with decorative wooden and masonry detailing, original openings and wooden porch.

The property at 28-34 Barrie Street has contextual value because it is important in maintaining and supporting the character of the block of Barrie Street between Okill and Stuart Streets, which displays a rich variety of late 19th/early 20th century architectural styles. The consistency in height, scale, building line and setbacks, as well as the generous front yards with mature landscaping give this block exceptional visual cohesion and integrity.

2638 Kepler Road (Part Lot 10 Con 7 Kingston Part 1, 13R6458; City of Kingston, County of Frontenac), known as the Powley Farmhouse:

The Powley Farmhouse is situated on the north side of the road, in the former Township of Kingston, now part of the City of Kingston. This 0.4 -hectare rural residential property contains a one-and-a-half storey limestone farmhouse built circa 1860 for farmers Jacob and Nancy Powley. The farmhouse is representative of the Ontario Gothic Revival Cottage, as demonstrated through the symmetrical façade, medium-pitched gable roof with twin chimneys at the roof peak, one on each end of the house, and a front elevation that includes a central gable, featuring an arched window opening. The building is well-crafted, with a demonstrable craftsmanship, visible in the attention to construction methods and materials. Particularly notable is the evenly coursed limestone construction and fine masonry work on the façade. The Powley Farmhouse also demonstrates several unusual elements, including its oversized main entrance, slightly recessed, with side lights and transom. The entrance and flanking window openings have flat heads embellished with tall stone voussoirs. The central window opening above the main entrance has a contrasting, dramatic half round arch with radiating stone voussoirs. The Powley's were a notable local family in the area, who donated portions of their lands for a school and a Methodist Episcopal Church. Jacob and Nancy Ann Powley constructed the limestone farmhouse around 1860, where they lived with their three daughters. The Powley Farmhouse supports the historic agricultural character of the area through its Ontario Gothic Revival style. The property also shares a visual and historical relationship with its surroundings and is an important part of the historical rural context of the area. Its heritage attributes include the one-and-a-half-storey limestone building with gable roof, twin chimneys and original symmetrical openings.

3578 Unity Road (Part Lot 4 Con 6 Western Addition Kingston as in FR615351 Except Part 6 EXPROP Plan RP1562; City of Kingston, County of Frontenac), known as the Raycroft Farmhouse:

The Raycroft Farmhouse is situated on the north side of the road, in the former Township of Kingston, now part of the City of Kingston. This 6.5-hectare rural property contains a one-and-a-half storey limestone farmhouse built in the 1860s for farmers Willam and Mary Raycroft. The farmhouse is representative of the Ontario Gothic Revival Cottage, as demonstrated through the symmetrical façade, median-pitched gable roof with twin chimneys at the roof peak, one on each end of the house, and a front elevation that includes a central gable, featuring an arched window opening. The building is well-crafted, with a demonstrable attention to construction methods and materials. Particularly notable is the evenly coursed limestone construction and fine masonry work on the façade. The centrally located front entranceway is flanked by large window openings, which is typical of the Ontario Gothic Revival Cottage style. The Raycroft Farmhouse also demonstrates several unusual elements such as its oversized flat-headed main entrance, slightly recessed with side lights and transom. The entrance and flanking window openings have flat heads embellished with tall stone voussoirs. The central window opening above the main entrance; however, has a dramatic half round arch with radiating stone voussoirs. The Raycroft Farmhouse supports the agricultural character of the area through its Ontario Gothic Revival style. The property also shares a visual and historical relationship with its surroundings and is an important part of the historical rural context of the area. Its heritage attributes include the one-and-a-half-storey limestone building with gable roof, twin chimneys, and original symmetrical openings and the one storey limestone wing on the east elevation.

62-74 Barrie Street (Part Lot A Plan A20 Kingston City as in FR155972 Except the First Easement Therein, as in FR155571 Except the First Easement Therein, as in FR144588 Except the Second Easement Therein; Part Lot 6-9 Plan Sampson Subdivision Kingston City as in FR155570, FR155569, FR257949 & FR231725 Except Parts 2 & 3 13R16366 & FR294588; S/T Interest in FR144588; S/T Interest in FR155569; S/T Interest in FR155570; S/T Interest in FR155571; S/T Interest in FR155972; S/T & T/W FR155569; City of Kingston, County of Frontenac), known as the Chown, Doran, Robinson, Mooers and Walkem Houses:

The property is located on the west side of Barrie Street, midblock between Okill and Stuart Streets, adjacent to City Park, in the City of Kingston. This 2,400 square metre property contains five two-and-a-half storey brick residences, namely the Chown House at 62 Barrie Street built circa 1911, the Doran and Robinson Houses at 64 and 66 Barrie Street, built as part of a row in the 1850s, the Mooers House at 68-70 Barrie Street built circa 1905, and the Walkem House at 72-74 Barrie Street constructed circa 1879.

The Chown House (62 Barrie Street) is a rare example of an Edwardian Classical house in the City of Kingston. The detached brick house is characterized by its asymmetrical but balanced massing, which includes a shallow hipped roof with pedimented dormer, a two-storey bay window and front porch spanning two bays. The building's red brick walls are laid in stretcher bond with slender joints pointed with a red tinted mortar, giving the walls a uniform character. The property was purchased in 1927 by Percy and Myrtle Chown. Donations from the Chown family supported the construction of the Sydenham Methodist Church (later United) in 1852 as well as Chown Hall women's residence at Queen's University in 1960. Its heritage attributes include the two-and-a-half storey red brick building with decorative wooden detailing, tall brick chimney, limestone foundation, original openings with two-storey bay window, tripartite window with leaded transom light and covered porch.

The Doran House (64 Barrie Street) is a rare example of the Second Empire style in the City of Kingston. Originally constructed as a larger row-house in the 1850s, the residence's two-and-a-half storey red brick massing is characterized by its bell curved mansard roof with dormer windows, which is the most distinctive element of the Second Empire architectural style and likely added after 1875 as a then trendy alteration. The house's architectural style is further characterized by its tall window openings with wooden sash windows with limestone sills supported by brick corbels and segmental arches and a coursed limestone foundation with evidence of original basement window openings with segmental arches. Its heritage attributes include the two-and-a-half storey red brick building with bell-curved mansard roof with arched dormer with wooden sash windows, decorative wooden detailing, limestone foundation and wood paneled door.

The Robinson House (66 Barrie Street) is a representative example of a mid-19th century Victorian residence. Sharing a party wall, it is likely that 64 and 66 Barrie Streets were constructed as a row under a common gable roof and are some of only a few surviving buildings on the west side of Barrie Street from the 1850s. Its Victorian architectural style is restrained and features red brick walls on a coursed limestone foundation, regularly placed tall window openings with wooden sash windows (some with six-over-six patterning) with limestone sills supported by brick corbels and segmental arches, gabled dormer windows and stone corbels at the southeast and northeast corners. The southern bay steps forward one brick width to feature the entrance, which includes a stepped brick, round-arched opening with an original or early door with wood paneling in the bottom half and glazing in the upper half with dentilled transom light. Its heritage attributes include the two-and-a-half storey red brick building with gabled roof, decorative wooden detailing, limestone foundation and wood paneled door.

The Mooers House (68-70 Barrie Street) is an unusual example of a large semi-detached residence with an Edwardian Classical influence. Constructed circa 1905 for H.F. Mooers, the building's two-and-a-half storey massing is defined by its mansard roof and monumental columns, which support second and third floor balconies; and the original wooden double leaf doors with transom light under Romanesque Revival style brick arches supported by Ionic columns. Typical of Edwardian Classical houses are the large windows with leaded transom lights and the application of simple classical detailing, including the widespread use of modillions and columns. The Mooers House demonstrates the work of well-known Kingston architect, William Newlands. Newlands opened his first Kingston office in 1882 and was a founding member of the Ontario Association of Architects in 1890. Some of Newlands' best-known works include the former Pittsburgh Town Hall in Barriefield Village, the former Victoria School on Union Street and the Newlands Pavilion along the waterfront in Macdonald Park. The Mooers House demonstrates Newlands' creativity and skill in the use of the Edwardian Classical style for a double house. Heritage attributes include the two-and-a-half storey red brick building with mansard roof, large wooden columns, balconies, bay windows, pedimented dormers, decorative brick detailing, limestone foundation and double-leaf door with transom light.

The Walkem House (72-74 Barrie Street) is a rare example of a large Gothic Revival style house in the City of Kingston. Constructed in 1879 for barrister Richard Thomas Muir Walkem and his wife Emily (nee Henderson), its strong vertical massing, dichromatic brickwork and decorative detailing are characteristic of its architectural style. There is extensive decorative detailing, including hood moldings, pierced vergeboard on the gables, metal cresting and metal cornices on the bay windows, corbelled brickwork under the cornices at the first and second floors on the bay windows, colonettes framing the first-floor bay windows and central hipped dormer window, and decorative buttresses with stone steps framing the portico. The original cast-iron fence on stone base makes a meaningful contribution to the character of the property and surrounding streetscape. The Walkem House displays a high degree of craftsmanship through its extensive decorative detailing in a variety of materials such as wood, metal and stone. The dichromatic brickwork in red with yellow accents is rare in the City of Kingston, as is the painted decorative metal work for the cornices, colonettes and cresting. The Walkem House demonstrates the work of well-known Kingston architectural firm, Power & Son. The architectural work of John Power and his sons, Joseph and Thomas, in Kingston is well-documented and includes a variety of residential, commercial, industrial and religious buildings, including such prominent downtown landmarks as McIntosh Castle, Fire Hall No.1 and the Frontenac County Registry Office. The Walkem House shows the firm's enthusiasm and creativity in designing a private residence. With its dramatic Gothic peaks, multi-coloured bricks, hood moldings, pierced vergeboard on the gables, metal cresting and cornices, and corbelled brickwork with decorative buttresses, John Power took advantage of the visibility and prominence of this location, across from City Park, to showcase his skills and use of the dramatic yet organized Gothic style. Heritage attributes include the two-and-a-half storey red brick building with hipped roof, steeply pitched gables, two-storey bay windows, central portico entrance with glazed and arched double doors, extensive decorative detailing in brick, stone, wood and metal, original openings, limestone foundation, and decorative iron and stone fence.

The property at 62-74 Barrie Street has contextual value because it is important in maintaining and supporting the character of this block of Barrie Street between Okill and Stuart Streets, which displays a rich variety of late 19th/early 20th century architectural styles. The consistency in height, scale, building line and setbacks, as well as the generous front yards with mature landscaping give this block exceptional visual cohesion and integrity.

9 Colborne Street (Part Lot 382 Original Survey Kingston City as in FR691014; T/W FR691014, City of Kingston, County of Frontenac); and

11 Colborne Street (Part Lot 382 Original Survey Kingston City as in FR463215; T/W FR463215, City of Kingston, County of Frontenac):

The subject properties at 9 and 11 Colborne Street are located on the north side of Colborne Street, just west of Sydenham Street, in the City of Kingston. Spanning two separate properties with a combined area of approximately 300 square metres, this two-storey red-brick double house was constructed between 1875 and 1892. 9 and 11 Colborne Street is a representative example of a Georgian-style duplex from the late 19th century. Typical of this architectural style is the symmetrical façade, with side gable roof and twin chimneys. As is common with Georgian buildings, there are limited decorative architectural features. Notable are the window and door openings, which exhibit segmental arches with brick voussoirs. The side gable roof with parapet walls and twin brick chimneys add to the symmetry of the building, reflecting its Georgian influence. The property is significant in defining the character of the streetscape along the north side of Colborne Street, between Sydenham and Clergy Streets. The north side of Colborne Street displays an almost continuous row of red-brick, 19th century duplexes and row houses. With its shallow setback, symmetrical fenestration pattern, red-brick construction and location close to the lot lines, 9 and 11 Colborne Street shares a visual and historical relationship with its surroundings. As part of this group of buildings, the subject duplex helps maintain the historic and eclectic character of this portion of Colborne Street. Its heritage attributes include the two-storey red brick building, with symmetrical four-bay façade and twin brick chimneys, segmentally arched window openings and limestone foundation.

22 Colborne Street (Part Lot 340 Original Survey Kingston City Parts 1, 2 13R4728; S/T FR352314; City of Kingston, County of Frontenac):

22 Colborne Street is located on the south side of the street, mid-block between Clergy and Sydenham Streets in downtown Kingston. The approximately 286 square metre residential property includes a two-storey limestone house, constructed circa 1866. This property is a representative example of a classical limestone dwelling with a Georgian influenced simple rectangular side-gable plan. On the main façade the stones are smooth ashlar, laid in uniform courses, while the side and rear walls have hammer-dressed, uncoursed stonework. The off-set doorway is recessed with paneled reveals, with a semi-circular arched transom. The regular pattern of openings, with tall stone voussoirs and stone windowsills, reflect the Georgian style. The large shed dormers dominate the roof line, but the Georgian influence is still visible in the original roof profile with gable end parapets with ashlar corbels, and the stone chimney on the western roof ridgeline. 22 Colborne Street is significant in defining the character of the streetscape on Colborne Street, between Sydenham and Clergy Streets. This area of downtown Kingston exhibits a continual pattern of reuse and replacement of existing structures that has left examples of building from the mid-19th century to the present. The streetscapes' historic buildings vary in height from one-and-a-half to two-and-a-half storeys. The north side of Colborne Street includes an almost continuous row of exclusively red-brick 19th century duplexes and row houses; dotted by a few limestone buildings. The south side of Colborne Street is a mix of stone, frame and brick buildings, mostly single detached units. This variety in 19th century design and materiality creates a distinct character and a visually appealing and diverse streetscape. With its shallow setback, symmetrical fenestration pattern, limestone construction and location close to the lot lines, 22 Colborne Street shares a visual and historical relationship with its surroundings. As part of this group of buildings, the subject building helps maintain the historic and eclectic character of this portion of Colborne Street. Its heritage attributes include the two storey limestone building with gable roof, parapet walls and stone chimney, central doorway with recessed paneled reveals, and regular pattern of openings.

30 Colborne Street (Part Lot 341, Original Survey, being Part 3, 13R19716; City of Kingston, County of Frontenac), known as the Queen Street Methodist Church Parsonage:

The former Queen Street Methodist Church Parsonage is located on the south side of the street, mid-block between Clergy and Sydenham Streets in downtown Kingston. The approximately 300 square metre property includes a two-and-a-half storey red brick house, with a one-and-a-half storey gable roofed rear addition. This property is a unique example of late Victorian residential architecture with religious architectural motifs. While the two-and-a-half storey scale, red brick construction with high limestone foundation, pitched roof, decorative off-set entranceway and grand embellishments at the cornice reflect the Victorian style, the former Parsonage has several unusual features for a Victorian residence. The brick detailing on the house adds to its grandeur and is indicative of its importance to the members of the Queen Street Methodist Church. The red bricks on the main façade are laid in a stretcher bond pattern, while the side elevations are common bond. Projecting brick key stones and voussoirs are present above all openings. The openings are Tudor arched on the main façade and flat headed on the side elevations. The front wall includes a giant pointed arch formed by a two-storey recessed panel with windows centrally placed within. The arch design is symbolic of the open arches often separating the nave from the sanctuary in a church and thus speaks to the religious connections to this building. One of the most distinguishing and unique features of the house is its cross-gable roof with hipped roof gables, deep dentilled cornice decorated in bas relief foliage and bracketed eaves.

The Parsonage yields information that contributes to an understanding of the development of the Methodist church in Kingston. The expansion of church operations over time led to the acquisition and construction of residential buildings. The Queen Street Methodist Church Parsonage was built to provide the residing minister a place to live where he would be in close proximity to the church and its parishioners at all times. The Reverend Joseph Hagan was the first occupant of the house. After 1958 it served as a meeting hall for members of Queen Street United Church congregation until it was sold in 1968.

The Parsonage is associated with the well-known local architectural firm of Power and Son. The Power and Son firm designed many prominent Kingston landmarks such as McIntosh Castle, Fire Hall No.1 and the Frontenac County Registry Office. They are also credited for designing several religious buildings in Kingston, such as the Cataraqui Methodist Church on Sydenham Road, St. Andrew's Church, St.

John's Church Hall and the enlargement of St. George's Cathedral. The Queen Street Methodist Church Parsonage is directly attributed to Joseph Power who showed his creativity with the decorative brick and wooden features and subtle religious symbology.

The former Queen Street Methodist Church Parsonage is significant in defining the character of the streetscape on Colborne Street, between Sydenham and Clergy Streets. This area of downtown Kingston exhibits a continual pattern of reuse and replacement of existing structures that has left examples of building from the mid-19th century to the present. The streetscapes' historic buildings vary in height from one-and-a-half to two-and-a-half storeys. The north side of Colborne Street includes an almost continuous row of exclusively red-brick 19th century duplexes and row houses; dotted by a few limestone buildings. The south side of Colborne Street is a mix of stone, frame and brick buildings, mostly single detached units. This variety in 19th century design and materiality creates a distinct character and a visually appealing and diverse streetscape. With its shallow setback, red brick construction and location close to the lot lines, the former Parsonage shares a visual and historical relationship with its surroundings. As part of this group of buildings, the subject building helps maintain the historic and eclectic character of this portion of Colborne Street.

The former Parsonage is also historically linked to the former Queen Street Methodist/United Church at 221 Queen Street and a cluster of buildings associated with the former Church operations, including the nearby church itself and Maple Cottage/Sexton house at 151 Clergy Street. Originally built on (or very near) the church property and under the direction of the church congregation, the former Parsonage is directly linked to the history and evolution of the Queen Street church. Its heritage attributes include the two-and-a-half storey red brick building with cross-gable roof, two-storey recessed pointed-arch brick panel, tall limestone foundation, wooden detailing, and original window and door openings.

37 Kennedy Street (Part Lot 1 S/S Union St & N/S Kennedy St Plan 54 Kingston City as in FR150913; City of Kingston, County of Frontenac), known as the Henley Cameron House:

The Henley Cameron House is located on the north side of the street, at the northwest corner with Yonge Street in the Village of Portsmouth, now City of Kingston. This approximately 358 square metre residential property contains a two-storey vernacular frame house constructed circa 1847 for Joseph Henley and altered in the 1850s by carpenter Alexander Cameron. The Henley Cameron House is a representative example of a mid-19th century one-and-a-half storey wood frame Georgian cottage. Typical of the Georgian style is the side gable roof and a central unadorned entranceway, flanked by symmetrically placed windows. While this building has been modified and restored several times, its profile, massing and fenestration pattern still retain a strong Georgian character. The vinyl siding, while a modern intervention, is reminiscent of the original wooden clapboard siding. The former Village of Portsmouth has a distinct heritage character, consisting of a historic village atmosphere, and a variety of built heritage resources including frame and stone dwellings from the 19th century. With its distinct Georgian design and corner location with frontage onto Yonge Street (once called Main Street), the Henley Cameron House helps define and maintain the historic village character of Portsmouth. Its heritage attributes include the two-storey wood frame building with side gable roof with vergeboard, symmetrical front façade with central entranceway, and one storey bay window on east elevation.

Description and Criteria for Designation
Charles Grass House

Civic Address: 1193 Front Road
Legal Description: Part Lot 2-3 Con Broken Front Kingston as in FR206281;
City of Kingston, County of Frontenac
Property Roll Number: 1011 080 030 09000

Introduction and Description of Property

The Charles Grass House at 1193 Front Road is situated on the south side of the road, in the former Township of Kingston, now the City of Kingston. The approximately 3.7-hectare waterfront parcel contains a two-storey residence with Italianate elements, constructed in the late 1860s.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value/Statement of Significance

The property has design value or physical value because it is a rare, unique, representative or early example of a style, type, expression, material or construction method.

The Italianate style is rare in Kingston Township, making the Charles Grass House a rare example of a two-storey ‘L’-shaped house with Italianate influences in this part of Kingston. The main front entrance and façade of the house sits perpendicular to Front Road, facing east.

The house is constructed of limestone laid in even courses on the front/eastern façade and in uneven courses on the side elevations. Typical of the Italianate style is the rectangular massing and hip roof with cornice brackets. Also typical of the style is the parried arched windows on the front façade. The house has three chimneys, including a double-flue chimney on the west side. The front/east façade is asymmetrical, featuring an enclosed porch with a hip roof and balcony with spindles, posts and post finials. The window openings feature limestone voussoirs and stone sills. The north elevation is two-bay with rectangular window openings that have limestone voussoirs and stone sills.

A one-storey limestone wing features a hip roof, an entranceway with engaged columns and entablature, flanked by rectangular window openings that continue the stone voussoirs and stone sills from the main portion of the house. There are also stone gate posts flanking each of the two entrances to the property. The property also features several outbuildings, including a wooden barn with a gable roof and a rear addition, located immediately south of the stone dwelling, likely constructed prior to 1900.

The property has historical value or associative value because it has direct associations with a theme, event, belief, person, activity, organization or institution that is significant to a community.

The Grass House is associated Charles Grass and family. Charles Grass was the son of Peter Grass, and grandson of Captain Michael Grass, a lieutenant in the volunteer militia that fought against the rebels in the American Revolution (and was then promoted to Captain). The Grass family is associated with the settlement of United Empire Loyalists at Cataraqui and is understood to be one of the first settlers in the former Township of Kingston. Charles Grass (1827-1896) married Isabella Ann Graham (1827-1876), circa 1852-1853, and they had four children, Ester Maria (1853-unknown), James (1855-unknown), William (1857-1919) and George (1859-unknown). The family lived in the stone house, which was constructed between 1861 and 1878. In 1876 Isabella Grass died. Charles Grass remarried in 1880 to Mary Stewart (1831-1914). Charles Grass died on September 28, 1896 of cancer.

Heritage Attributes

Key exterior elements that contribute to the property's cultural heritage value include its:

- Two storey limestone house in an 'L'-shaped plan, constructed of limestone laid in even courses on the front façade and uneven course on the side elevations;
- Hip roof with cornice brackets and three brick chimneys, including a double flue chimney;
- Asymmetrical front façade, with rectangular and arched window openings with limestone voussoirs and sills;
- Porch with a hip roof and balcony with spindles, posts and post finials;
- Symmetrical two-bay north elevation; and
- One-storey square limestone addition with a hip roof, entranceway and entablature, flanked by window openings.

Non-Heritage Attributes

Elements that are not included in the Statement of Cultural Heritage Value of the property include:

- Various detached outbuildings;
- Sunroom addition on south side;
- Southern addition with horizontal siding; and
- Pool and pool enclosure.

Foster Building

Civic Address: 123-129 Princess Street
Legal Description: Part Lots 222 & 229 Original Survey, T/W Interest in FR91600; City of Kingston, County of Frontenac.
Property Roll Number: 1011 030 090 02800

Introduction and Description of Property

The property at 123-129 Princess Street is located on the north side of Princess Street on the block bound by Bagot, Queen and Wellington Streets in downtown Kingston. The approximately 580 square metre property contains a three-storey Georgian-style commercial row, constructed in 1854 for local businessman, Abraham Foster as a rental.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value/Statement of Significance

The property has design value or physical value because it is a rare, unique, representative or early example of a style, type, expression, material or construction method.

The Foster building is a representative example of a mid 19th century Georgian-style commercial row in downtown Kingston. Its simple three-storey massing with 6 bays, restrained architectural detailing (i.e. coursed, squared and smooth ashlar dressed limestone masonry façade, stone windowsills, flat headed window openings with stone voussoirs, stone cornice with rolled molding and brackets), and the overall impression of balance and symmetry is typical of 19th century Georgian commercial rows on downtown main streets in Ontario.

Although the original windows have been removed, and the oriel window is likely a later addition, the size and proportions of the original window openings reflect the vertical emphasis of the Georgian commercial architectural style, and the decrease in height from the second to third floors.

Despite the replacement of many of the historic storefronts along the row, their commercial use maintains the historic development pattern in downtown Kingston (i.e. commercial at grade with residential above).

The property has contextual value because it is important in defining, maintaining or supporting the character of an area.

The property has contextual value because it is physically, functionally, visually or historically linked to its surroundings.

With its three-storey scale, limestone construction and setback close to the street, the Foster building has contextual value for its role in supporting and maintaining the historic commercial character of Princess Street and downtown Kingston. The property also has contextual value for its continuity of roofline, window lines and Georgian commercial style, which link this property physically and visually to this block of Princess Street, including the flanking 19th century stone buildings.

Heritage Attributes

Key exterior elements that contribute to the property's cultural heritage value include its:

- Three-storey row massing with gable roof with stone parapet walls;
- Coursed, squared and ashlar dressed limestone masonry façade;
- Original window openings on the façades with stone voussiors and stone windowsills; and
- Stone cornice above the third floor, punctuated by decorative stone brackets and rolled molding.

Description and Criteria for Designation
Hunter Farmhouse

Civic Address: 1359 Unity Road
Legal Description: Part Lot 27 Con 5 Kingston as in FR571998; City of Kingston, County of Frontenac
Property Roll Number: 1011 080 260 05700

Introduction and Description of Property

The Hunter Farmhouse, located at 1359 Unity Road, is situated on the south side of the road, east of Perth Road, in the former Township of Kingston, now part of the City of Kingston. This 0.2-hectare rural residential property contains a one-and-a-half storey Ontario vernacular brick farmhouse, built circa 1862 for the Hunter family. Modern additions have been added to the rear and side of the main house.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value/Statement of Significance

The property has design value or physical value because it is a rare, unique, representative or early example of a style, type, expression, material or construction method.

The Hunter Farmhouse is a representative example of a 19th century one-and-a-half storey Georgian influenced Ontario vernacular brick farmhouse. The symmetrical front façade characterized by a central entrance flanked by windows under a medium-pitched gable roof and single brick chimney is representative of the Georgian style dwelling.

The east elevation has two window openings in the upper storey and a central window opening in the first storey. The west elevation has two window openings in the upper storey separated by a brick chimney and a single window below. The window openings are highlighted by red brick voussoirs and stone sills.

While the building has been modified, including lengthening the central gable window to create a door and the addition of the covered front porch, its profile, massing and fenestration pattern still retain a strong Georgian character.

The property has historical value or associative value because it has direct associations with a theme, event, belief, person, activity, organization or institution that is significant to a community.

The Hunter Farmhouse is associated with the Hunter family who built the house and worked the land for over 40 years. George Hunter (1815-1907) along with his wife

Sarah (1817-1888) and son Frederick (1856-1928) arrived in Canada in 1857 from England. They received the deed for the 100-acre property in 1862 and built the structure shortly thereafter. George Hunter is listed as a farmer in the Ontario Gazetteer. George died in 1888 and the property was passed to his son Frederick who lived on and farmed the land until 1908 when it was sold to Charles Cashman.

The property has historical value or associative value because it yields, or has the potential to yield, information that contributes to an understanding of a community or culture.

The Hunter Farmhouse is identified as a post office on the 1878 map of the Township of Kingston. Local post office depots were common in the rural area and acted as local gathering spots for the community. George Hunter was the Glenburnie Postmaster from 1867 until 1886. The Hunter Farmhouse was likely well known in the Glenburnie/Shannon's Corners community.

Heritage Attributes

Key exterior elements that contribute to the property's cultural heritage value include its:

- One-and-a-half storey red brick farmhouse with medium-pitch side gable roof with central medium-pitched gable;
- Symmetrical front façade with central entrance, flanked by large window openings;
- Window openings with red brick voussoirs and stone sills; and
- Two-bay side elevations, west elevation separated by a single brick chimney breast.

Cappon House, Bibby House & Strange House

Property Roll Number: 1011 010 040 10900

Introduction and Description of Property

The property at 26-34 Barrie Street is located on the west side of Barrie Street, at the north-west intersection with Okill Street, adjacent to City Park, in the City of Kingston. This 1,400 square metre property contains two detached brick residences, namely the Cappon House at 26 Barrie built in 1897 and the Bibby House at 28 Barrie built in 1913, and one half of a semi-detached brick residence known as the Strange House at 34 Barrie constructed circa 1890.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value/Statement of Significance

The property has design value or physical value because it is a rare, unique, representative or early example of a style, type, expression, material or construction method.

The Cappon House (26 Barrie Street), built for James Cappon in 1897, has design value as an example of a late 19th century Victorian residence with a distinctive Queen Anne Style influence. The red brick masonry construction with limestone foundation and tall window openings with segmental arches and limestone sills are typical of its 1897 construction date, while a distinctive Queen Anne influence is expressed through its two-and-a-half storey asymmetrical massing, which includes a truncated hip roof with two large projecting bay windows with pedimented gables, as well as decorative wood detailing and the oval window on the Okill Street elevation. The two pedimented gables are clad in wooden shingles and supported by large, finely decorated wooden brackets. Each gable contains an original sliding sash window in the Queen Anne Style (i.e. divided lights in the upper sash over single light in the lower sash), which are framed by decorative columns and topped with a pediment. This window design is largely replicated on the pedimented gable dormer on the façade (east elevation). A dentilled cornice supports the wooden eaves.

Although somewhat obscured by a modern awning, the front entrance features original double leaf wooden doors with transom light, which reflect the decorative detailing and motifs found in the upper story woodwork.

The house successfully addresses both corner elevations with the south elevation featuring an elliptical window with decorative brick trim on the ground floor and a decorative raised brick apron beneath the original window opening above, as well as the use of stone steps to maintain asymmetry on the tall brick chimney. The red brick masonry walls and segmental arches over windows are finely executed with slender joints. The three shed roof dormers are not in-keeping with the quality of the original building's design and detailing, but do not distract from, or diminish, its overall architectural expression.

The Bibby House (28 Barrie Street), built for H.D. Bibby in 1913, has design value as a rare and eclectic example of the Foursquare Style dwelling. The house's two-and-a-half storey cubic massing and hipped roof are defining features of this style, but its overall architectural expression is more elaborate than a typical Foursquare residence, owing to several design elements unusual for examples of the style. For example, the hip roof has exceptionally deep overhanging eaves with wooden soffit, and frieze board with architrave. The depth of the eave accommodates an unusual two-storey bay window in the left bay of the façade, which features wooden casement windows divided by mullions with leaded lights above a transom with cornice. Another unusual design feature of this Foursquare is the two-storey full-width side porch, which mirrors the front porch design on the ground floor but includes engaged wooden columns on the second floor. The windows on the second floor of the porch thoughtfully reflect the proportions of windows on the house.

The brown brick masonry walls in stretcher/running bond rest upon a coursed rock-faced limestone foundation with an ashlar base course. The façade features a symmetrical layout of original openings, which include wooden casement and/or sash windows with leaded transom lights, stone sills and brick segmental arches. The ground floor window in the right (north) bay includes a raised segmental brick arch featuring a keystone. The central entrance features a gabled porch with pediment resting on circular stone columns atop brick piers and square columns against the main walls. The wooden front door with leaded transom light, including the identification of the street number, is original. The dormers on the south, east and north elevations are likely later additions owing to their size, design and detailing, but are compatible with the house's architectural character.

The Strange House (34 Barrie Street), built for the Strange family in 1890, has design value as an example of Victorian residence that incorporates design elements from a variety of architectural styles, including the Romanesque Revival and Queen Anne Revival Styles. Its two-and-a-half storey massing is symmetrical with a central projecting bay flanked by one-storey porches with bay windows, dormer windows and brick chimneys, resting upon a coursed rock-faced limestone foundation with ashlar base course.

The vertical emphases and proportions of the building's massing (i.e. windows, central projecting bay with gable roof, gabled dormer windows) are Victorian, but the application of the Romanesque Revival and Queen Anne Styles, gives a different architectural expression than is typical of Victorian residences. The front entrance is defined by a Romanesque Revival arch, springing from short piers and providing a covered entrance over both entrances of the semi-detached house. The Queen Anne Style influence is seen in the variety of decorative woodwork and masonry on the façade. The exposed wooden rafters under the eave are an unusual design feature for its construction date; being more typical of the later Arts and Crafts Style. Despite the implementation of a variety of design elements, the building's composition and architectural expression are balanced and harmonious.

The property has design value or physical value because it displays a high degree of craftsmanship or artistic merit.

The Strange House (34 Barrie Street) displays a high degree of craftsmanship through the variety of finely executed decorative masonry and woodwork. Decorative masonry on the façade includes a basketweave pattern at the first and second floors of the central projecting bay, a dentilled string course connecting the three pairs of windows on the second floor, raised brick courses framing the paired windows in both rectilinear and curved shapes, and arcade pattern supporting the semi-circular window in the gable. Decorative woodwork is featured on the cornice above the Romanesque Revival arch, which is supported by pairs of decorative brackets, the decorative brackets supporting the eave returns under the gable, the gable itself, which is richly decorated with a lattice pattern and spindles, the exposed wooden rafters and window surrounds. The dormer window features a pediment with a sunburst motif. The front porch also features finely decorated posts, which largely mirror the design of decorative columns framing the dormer window.

The property has historical value or associative value because it demonstrates or reflects the work or ideas of an architect, artist, builder, designer or theorist who is significant to a community.

The Cappon House (26 Barrie) has historical/associative value through its association with the local architect Arthur Ellis. Ellis was born and educated in England before moving to Canada in 1891. He worked in Kingston from 1891 to 1910 and his commissions included such notable (now lost) Kingston buildings as the YMCA building at Princess and Barrie (demolished in the 1960s) and the original 1896 Frontenac Public School (replaced in the 1940s). Ellis is also credited for a number of residences such as at 162, 168, 181 and 183 University Avenue and 109-111 Wellington Street. The Cappon House is representative of the style of house and use of red brick that appears to be Ellis's preferred medium.

The Bibby House (28 Barrie) has historical/associative value through its association with the well-known local architectural firm of Power and Son. The Power and Son firm designed many prominent Kingston landmarks such as McIntosh Castle, Fire Hall No. 1 and the Frontenac County Registry Office. The Bibby House was built during the firm's later years under the leadership of Joseph Power (his father John having died in 1882) and before partnering with Colin Drever in 1919. The hipped roof was a favourite of the Power firm to showcase their soaring decorative chimneys; however, the dark brown brick was not a common choice for the company.

The property has contextual value because it is important in defining, maintaining or supporting the character of an area.

The property at 28-34 Barrie Street has contextual value because it is important in maintaining and supporting the character of the block of Barrie Street between Okill and Stuart Streets, which displays a rich variety of late 19th/early 20th century architectural styles. The consistency in height, scale, building line, and setbacks, as well as the generous front yards with mature landscaping give this block exceptional visual cohesion and integrity.

Heritage Attributes (26 Barrie Street)

Key exterior elements that contribute to the property's cultural heritage value include its:

- Asymmetrical two-and-a-half storey massing with truncated hip roof;
- Red brick masonry walls in stretcher/running bond with slender joints;
- Three tall brick chimneys;
- Wooden eaves including frieze board and dentilled cornice;
- Projecting bay windows with pedimented gables clad in 'full cove' wooden shingles, and supported by large decorative brackets, on the east and south elevations;
- Original vertically sliding wooden sash windows in gable ends (east and south elevations) and gabled dormer (east elevation) with decorative pediments and columns framing openings;
- Original window openings with segmental arches and limestone sills;
- Elliptical window with decorative brick trim;
- Raised brick apron under second storey window opening on the south elevation;
- Original double leaf wooden doors with decorative trim and transom light on façade; and
- Rock-faced randomly coursed limestone foundation with ashlar base course.

Heritage Attributes (28 Barrie Street)

Key exterior elements that contribute to the property's cultural heritage value include its:

- Two-and-a-half storey massing with hipped roof;
- Brown brick masonry walls in stretcher/running bond; tall, symmetrically placed brick chimneys on the south and north elevations;
- Deep overhanging eaves with wooden soffits, frieze board and architrave;
- Two-storey bay window with casement windows and leaded transom lights;
- Original window openings with wooden casement or sash windows with leaded transom lights, brick segmental arches, and stone sills;
- Segmental arch with raised courses forming a keystone over the ground floor tripartite window;
- Central front porch with pedimented gable, brick piers, stone columns and wooden railings;
- Original wooden front door with transom light;

- Two-storey full-width porch on the south elevation with brick piers, stone columns and wooden railings, and wooden columns and wooden windows on the second floor; and
- Coursed rock-faced stone foundation with ashlar base course.

Heritage Attributes (34 Barrie Street)

Key exterior elements that contribute to the property's cultural heritage value include its:

- Two-and-a-half storey massing with side gable roof with central gabled projecting bay;
- Red brick masonry walls in stretcher/running bond with slender joints;
- Wooden eaves with exposed rafter ends;
- Tall decorative brick chimney on the south gable end;
- Romanesque Revival arch with recessed entry featuring original wooden front door with transom light;
- One-storey wooden porch with truncated hipped roof (aligning with flat roof over central entrance) with turned wooden posts and plain wooden balustrade;
- Original door opening on south elevation of central entrance providing access to porch;
- Bay window with wooden mullions separating three sash windows with wooden paneling below;
- Original window openings with stone sills and brick segmental arches in the recessed bay and with elliptical arches in the central projecting bay;
- Semi-circular window divided by wooden mullion with stone sill in central gable;
- Gabled dormer windows with two-over-two vertically sliding sash windows;
- Decorative brickwork including Romanesque Revival arch, basketweave/checkerboard pattern, dentilled string course, raised courses and arcade pattern;
- Decorative woodwork on the gable, dormer window, cornice and porch; and
- Coursed rock-faced limestone foundation with ashlar base course.

Legal Description: Part Lot 10 Con 7 Kingston Part 1, 13R6458; City of
Kingston, County of Frontenac
Property Roll Number: 1011 080 240 18910

Introduction and Description of Property

The Powley Farmhouse, located at 2638 Kepler Road, is situated on the north side of the road, in the former Township of Kingston, now part of the City of Kingston. This 0.4 - hectare rural residential property contains a one-and-a-half storey limestone Ontario Gothic Revival Cottage style farmhouse built circa 1860 for farmers Jacob and Nancy Powley.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value/Statement of Significance

The property has design value or physical value because it is a rare, unique, representative or early example of a style, type, expression, material or construction method.

The property has design value or physical value because it displays a high degree of craftsmanship or artistic merit.

The farmhouse is representative of the Ontario Gothic Revival Cottage, as demonstrated through the symmetrical façade, medium-pitched gable roof with twin chimneys at the roof peak, one on each end of the house, and a front elevation that includes a central gable, featuring an arched window opening. The building is well-crafted, with a demonstrable craftsmanship, visible in the attention to construction methods and materials. Particularly notable is the evenly coursed limestone construction and fine masonry work on the façade.

The centrally located front entranceway is flanked by large window openings, which is typical of the Ontario Gothic Revival Cottage style. All window and door openings have tall stone voussoirs and stone sills. The west elevation includes two bays each featuring large window openings.

A sympathetic one storey wing, clad in board and batten siding, extends from the east elevation and features a medium-pitch cross gable roof with three large windows facing the road and a side entrance with porch. The wing also has a limestone chimney at the gable end and a stone-clad foundation.

Despite displaying architectural elements common to the style, the Powley Farmhouse also demonstrates several unusual elements. For example, its oversized main entrance is slightly recessed with side lights and transom. The entrance and flanking window openings have flat heads embellished with tall stone voussoirs. The central window opening above the main entrance has a contrasting, dramatic half round arch with radiating stone voussoirs.

The property also includes a large detached garage, which is not identified as supporting the heritage value of the property.

The property has historical value or associative value because it has direct associations with a theme, event, belief, person, activity, organization or institution that is significant to a community.

The Powley family were descendants of J. Jacob Powley, a United Empire Loyalist and early settler to Kingston Township. The Powleys were a notable local family in the area, who donated portions of their lands for a school and a Methodist Episcopal Church. Jacob Powley constructed a log farmhouse on the subject property where he lived with his wife Nancy Ann and their three daughters. The farmhouse was rebuilt with the current limestone one around 1860, at about the same time as the first log school on the Powley property was replaced with a stone structure. The Powley Farmhouse remained under the ownership of the Powleys into the 20th century, when Jacob sold the property to his eldest daughter Catherine and her husband Joseph Lawson.

The property has contextual value because it is important in defining, maintaining or supporting the character of an area.

The property has contextual value because it is physically, functionally, visually or historically linked to its surroundings.

The Powley Farmhouse supports the agricultural character of the area through its Ontario Gothic Revival style, which was a common design in Ontario farmhouse construction during the second half of the 19th century. In addition, the modest setback of the residence reflects similar residential sitings along Kepler Road between Sydenham Road and Babcock Road. The property also shares a visual and historical relationship with its surroundings and is an important part of the historical rural context of the area.

Heritage Attributes

Key exterior elements that contribute to the property's cultural heritage value include its:

- One-and-a-half storey limestone construction with medium-pitch side gable roof with a central medium-pitch front gable;
- Semi-circular arched window opening and a stone sill located in the central gable;
- Symmetrical front façade with a central entranceway flanked by window openings;

- Large entranceway, slightly recessed, with sidelights, a transom and radiating limestone voussoirs; and
- Two chimneys, one at each gable end.

Non-Heritage Attributes

Elements that are not included in the Statement of Cultural Heritage Value of the property include:

- Various detached outbuildings and structures.

County of Frontenac
Property Roll Number: 1011 080 230 04700

Introduction and Description of Property

The Raycroft Farmhouse, located at 3578 Unity Road, is situated on the north side of the road, in the former Township of Kingston, now part of the City of Kingston. This 6.5-hectare rural property contains a one-and-a-half storey limestone Ontario Gothic Revival Cottage style farmhouse built in the 1860s for farmers Willam and Mary Raycroft.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value/Statement of Significance

The property has design value or physical value because it is a rare, unique, representative or early example of a style, type, expression, material or construction method.

The property has design value or physical value because it displays a high degree of craftsmanship or artistic merit.

William Raycroft and his wife Mary Burnside were born in Ireland and immigrated to Canada in the early 1800s. They obtained a Crown Patent for the property in 1864; however, they appear to have been living on the property as early as 1851. William and Mary Raycroft operated a successful farm, employing labourers, and raised their eight children in the stone dwelling. William died in 1885, but his family continued to live on and farm the property until 1900 when it was sold.

The farmhouse is representative of the Ontario Gothic Revival Cottage, as demonstrated through the symmetrical façade, median-pitched gable roof with twin chimneys at the roof peak, one on each end of the house, and a front elevation that includes a central gable, featuring an arched window opening. The building is well-crafted, with a demonstrable attention to construction methods and materials. Particularly notable is the evenly coursed limestone construction and fine masonry work on the façade.

The centrally located front entranceway is flanked by large window openings, which is typical of the Ontario Gothic Revival Cottage style. All window and door openings have tall stone voussoirs and stone sills. The west elevation includes two bays each featuring large window openings. A one storey wing extends from the east elevation and features a medium-pitch side gable roof and a verandah with a shed roof that runs the length of the wing's façade, covering a central entrance flanked by windows. The wing also has a limestone chimney at the gable end.

Despite displaying architectural elements common to the style, the Raycroft Farmhouse also demonstrates several unusual elements. For example, its oversized flat-headed main entrance, slightly recessed with side lights and transom. The entrance and flanking window openings have flat heads embellished with tall stone voussoirs. The central window opening above the main entrance however has a dramatic half round arch with radiating stone voussoirs.

The main dwelling also includes a large rear (north side) addition and several detached farm outbuildings, which are not identified as supporting the heritage value of the property.

The property has contextual value because it is important in defining, maintaining or supporting the character of an area.

The property has contextual value because it is physically, functionally, visually or historically linked to its surroundings.

The Raycroft Farmhouse supports the agricultural character of the area through its Ontario Gothic Revival style, which was a common design in Ontario farmhouse construction during the second half of the 19th century. In addition, the generous setback of the residence reflects similar residential sitings along Unity Road between Quabbin Road and Rock Road. The property also shares a visual and historical relationship with its surroundings and is an important part of the historical rural context of the area.

Heritage Attributes

Key exterior elements that contribute to the property's cultural heritage value include its:

- One-and-a-half storey limestone construction with medium-pitch side gable roof with a central medium-pitch front gable;

- Two chimneys, one at each gable end; and
- One storey wing on the east elevation with medium-pitch side gable roof with stone chimney, a verandah with a shed roof that runs the length of the front façade over symmetrical openings.

Non-Heritage Attributes

Elements that are not included in the Statement of Cultural Heritage Value of the property include:

- Various detached outbuildings and structures.

Introduction and Description of Property

The property at 62-74 Barrie Street is located on the west side of Barrie Street, midblock between Okill and Stuart Streets, adjacent to City Park, in the City of Kingston. This approximately 2,400 square metre property contains a collection of two-and-a-half storey brick buildings of varying residential architectural styles, constructed between the mid-19th and early 20th centuries.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value/Statement of Significance

The property has design value or physical value because it is a rare, unique, representative or early example of a style, type, expression, material or construction method.

The Chown House (62 Barrie Street) has design value as a rare example of an Edwardian Classical house in the City of Kingston. Constructed circa 1911 and purchased by Percy and Myrtle Chown in 1927, this large, detached brick house is characterized by its asymmetrical but balanced massing, which includes a shallow hipped roof with pedimented dormer, a two-storey bay window, and front porch spanning two bays. The deep overhanging eaves and two-storey bay window mirror those on 28 Barrie Street, indicating the possibility of a common architect. The application of simple yet prolific classical detailing includes a dentilled cornice, large modillions, pediments and columns. The building's red brick walls are laid in stretcher bond with slender joints pointed with a red tinted mortar, giving the walls a uniform character. The original window openings with wooden sash windows, casements in the dormer window, and leaded transom lights on the bay window, have limestone sills and finely executed segmental arches. The tripartite window on the first-floor features wooden mullions and a dentilled transom light. The pedimented porch rests on brick piers and includes paired and tripled Ionic columns and a wooden balustrade.

The Doran House (64 Barrie Street) has design value as a rare example of the Second Empire style in the City of Kingston. Originally constructed as a double-house in the 1850s, the residence's two-and-a-half storey red brick massing is characterized by its bell curved mansard roof with dormer windows, which is the most distinctive element of the Second Empire architectural style and likely added after 1875 as a then trendy alteration. The façade is divided into three bays with the southern bay stepping forward one brick width and featuring the entrance, which includes a stepped brick, round-arched opening with paneled wood door, dentilled transom light (with etched glazing). The house's architectural style is further characterized by its tall window openings with wooden sash windows (some with six-over-six patterning) with limestone sills supported by brick corbels and segmental arches (in a different tone of red brick on the second floor), and a coursed limestone foundation with evidence of original basement window openings with segmental arches. The mansard roof is supported by a bracketed wooden eave with stone corbel at the southeast corner and is capped with a dentilled cornice. The dormers are elegantly detailed, and their arched roofs mirror the brick arch surrounding the front entrance. The front porch is a later addition but does not detract from the architectural quality of the building.

The Robinson House (66 Barrie Street) has design value as a representative example of a mid-19th century Victorian residence. Constructed in the 1850s, its two-and-a-half storey red brick massing and detailing closely mirror 64 Barrie Street; the main difference being its original shallow gable roof form. Sharing a party wall, it is likely that 64 and 66 Barrie Streets were constructed as a double-house under a common gable roof and are some of only a few surviving early buildings on the west side of Barrie Street. Its Victorian architectural style is restrained and features red brick walls on a coursed limestone foundation, regularly placed tall window openings with wooden sash windows (some with six-over-six patterning) with limestone sills supported by brick corbels and segmental arches, gabled dormer windows and stone corbels at the southeast and northeast corners. The southern bay steps forward one brick width to feature the entrance, which includes a stepped brick, round-arched opening with an original or early door with wood paneling in the bottom half and glazing in the upper half with dentilled transom light. The northeast corner of the façade terminates with a 'column' of brickwork stepping forward one brick width. The gable roof porch is a later addition and does complement the quality of the architecture.

The Mooers House (68-70 Barrie Street) has design value as an unusual example of a large semi-detached residence with an Edwardian Classical influence. Constructed circa 1905 for H.F. Mooers, the building's two-and-a-half storey massing is defined by its mansard roof, and monumental columns, which support second and third floor balconies. The columns frame the north bay of each semi-detached unit, which include a balcony on the second and third floors with a pedimented gable supported by colonettes above the third-floor balcony. On the first floor, the original wooden double leaf doors with transom light (No. 68 with leaded transom light) are recessed within Romanesque Revival style brick arches supported by Ionic columns. The south bays of each unit feature two storey bay windows with flat roofs and pedimented dormer windows in the mansard roof.

Typical of Edwardian Classical houses are the large windows with leaded transom lights and the application of simple classical detailing, including the widespread use of modillions (under the main eave, on the cornice above the bay windows, on the cornice above the second-floor balconies and under the pedimented gable roofs), and columns (i.e. the two monumental columns, colonettes on the third-floor balconies and Ionic columns framing the entrances). The red brick walls with red tinted mortar joints, continuous stone sills and lintels, recessed brick panels on the bay windows and dressed limestone foundation give the building a sense of robustness and exemplify a departure from the ornate tendencies of the Victorian era. The square capitals on the monumental columns replace earlier Ionic capitals like those supporting the Romanesque Revival style arch over the entrance. Given the large setback between this house and No. 72-74 to the north, the side (north) elevation is unusually prominent along the streetscape and includes an elliptical window with decorative brick trim and sash windows with segmental arches and limestone sills.

The Walkem House (72-74 Barrie Street) has design value as a rare example of a large Gothic Revival style house in the City of Kingston. Constructed in 1879 for barrister Richard Thomas Muir Walkem and his wife Emily (nee Henderson), its strong vertical massing, dichromatic brickwork and decorative detailing are characteristic of its architectural style. The building's symmetrical massing is defined by two steeply pitched gables, each with a two-storey bay window. The central bay is recessed with a pair of double wooden doors on the second floor with pointed segmental arch and hood moulding and hipped dormer above. A projecting flat roof portico with double leaf wooden doors and stained-glass transom light is centrally located on the first floor. The original window openings are tall and narrow with segmental arches with key stones on the ground floor and flat arches with hood moldings on the second floor. There is extensive decorative detailing, including dichromatic brickwork, hood moldings, pierced vergeboard on the gables, metal cresting and metal cornices on the bay windows, corbelled brickwork under the cornices at the first and second floors on the bay windows, colonettes framing the first-floor bay windows and central hipped dormer window, and decorative buttresses with stone steps framing the portico. The side (north) addition with gable roof was constructed circa 1938 and while attempting to mirror the architectural style, detracts from the symmetry of the original design. Three original door openings remain on the south elevation that opened onto a full-width side porch (since demolished). The original cast-iron fence on stone base makes a meaningful contribution to the character of the property and surrounding streetscape.

The property has design value or physical value because it displays a high degree of craftsmanship or artistic merit.

72-74 Barrie Street (Walkem House) has design value because it displays a high degree of craftsmanship. The extensive decorative detailing is well-executed and includes a variety of materials such as wood, metal and stone. The dichromatic brickwork in red with yellow accents is rare in the City of Kingston, as is the painted decorative metal work including cornices, colonettes and cresting.

The property has historical value or associative value because it has direct associations with a theme, event, belief, person, activity, organization or institution that is significant to a community.

62 Barrie Street (Chown House) has associative value for its connection to the Chown family. The property was purchased in 1927 by Percy and Myrtle Chown, members of a prominent Kingston family known for their philanthropy. Donations from the Chown family supported the construction of the Sydenham Methodist Church (later United) in 1852 as well as Chown Hall women's residence at Queen's University in 1960.

The property has historical value or associative value because it demonstrates or reflects the work or ideas of an architect, artist, builder, designer or theorist who is significant to a community.

68-70 Barrie Street (Mooers House) has associative value because it demonstrates the work of well-known Kingston architect, William Newlands. Newlands opened his first Kingston office in 1882. He was a founding member of the Ontario Association of Architects in 1890. William's son, John Creighton Newlands, joined his father as his draftsman in 1903, later becoming a partner in 1910 resulting in a name change to "Newlands & Son". Some of Newlands' best-known works include 169 King Street East, the former Pittsburgh Town Hall on Regent Street in Barriefield Village, the Victoria School (now Queen's School of Business) on Union Street and the Newlands Pavilion along the waterfront in Macdonald Park.

The Mooers House demonstrates Newlands' creativity and skill in the use of the Edwardian Classical style for a double house. Notable features of Newlands' design are the dramatic three-storey columns framing the main entrances with Romanesque arches held up by matching engaged columns.

72-74 Barrie Street (Walkem House) has associative value because it demonstrates the work of well-known Kingston architectural firm, Power & Son. Power & Son originated with John Power's immigration to Canada West (now Ontario) in 1846. John Power quickly established himself as a local architect and in 1872 took into partnership his son, Joseph Power, the firm being called Power & Son. The architectural work of John Power and his sons, Joseph and Thomas, in Kingston is well-documented and includes a variety of residential, commercial, industrial and religious buildings, including such prominent downtown landmarks such as McIntosh Castle, Fire Hall No.1 and the Frontenac County Registry Office.

The Walkem House shows the firm's enthusiasm and creativity in designing a private residence. With its dramatic Gothic peaks, multi-coloured bricks, hood moldings, pierced vergeboard on the gables, metal cresting and cornices, and corbelled brickwork with decorative buttresses, John Power took advantage of the visibility and prominence of this location, across from City Park, to showcase his skills and use of the dramatic yet organized Gothic style.

The property has contextual value because it is important in defining, maintaining or supporting the character of an area.

The property at 62-74 Barrie Street has contextual value because it is important in maintaining and supporting the character of this block of Barrie Street between Okill and Stuart Streets, which displays a rich variety of late 19th/early 20th century architectural styles. The consistency in height, scale, building line and setbacks, as well as the generous front yards with mature landscaping give this block exceptional visual cohesion and integrity.

Heritage Attributes (62 Barrie Street)

Introduction and Description of Property

The subject properties at 9 and 11 Colborne Street are located on the north side of Colborne Street, just west of Sydenham Street, in the City of Kingston. Spanning two separate properties with a combined area of approximately 300 square metres, this two-storey red-brick double house was constructed between 1875 and 1892, likely as a rental property.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value/Statement of Significance

The property has design value or physical value because it is a rare, unique, representative or early example of a style, type, expression, material or construction method.

9 and 11 Colborne Street is a representative example of a Georgian-style duplex from the late 19th century. Typical of this architectural style is the symmetrical façade, with side gable roof and twin chimneys. This building features a four-bay façade (two for each unit) with offset front doors. As is common with Georgian buildings, there are limited decorative architectural features. Notable are the window and door openings, which exhibit segmental arches with brick voussoirs. The fenestration on the first and second stories have wood surrounds, stone sills, and what appear to be period two-over-two sash windows. The side gable roof with parapet walls and twin brick chimneys add to the symmetry of the building, reflecting its Georgian influence.

The property has contextual value because it is important in defining, maintaining or supporting the character of an area.

The property has contextual value because it is physically, functionally, visually or historically linked to its surroundings.

The property located at 9 and 11 Colborne Street is significant in defining the character of the streetscape along the north side of Colborne Street, between Sydenham and Clergy Streets. While the south side of the street demonstrates a continual pattern of highly altered and replaced residential buildings, the north side of Colborne Street displays an almost continuous row of red-brick, 19th century duplexes and row houses.

With its shallow setback, symmetrical fenestration pattern, red-brick construction, and location close to the lot lines, 9 and 11 Colborne Street shares a visual and historical relationship with its surroundings, particularly the brick houses at 2-4, 13-17, 25 and 30 Colborne Street, as well as the stone buildings at 7 and 22 Colborne Street. As part of this group of buildings, the subject duplex helps maintain the historic and eclectic character of this portion of Colborne Street.

Heritage Attributes

Key exterior elements that contribute to the property's cultural heritage value include its:

- Two-storey, red-brick duplex building, with symmetrical four-bay façade (two for each unit) and side gable roof with parapet walls and twin brick chimneys;
- Offset front doors with segmentally arched openings topped by brick voussoirs and feature segmentally arched transoms;
- Segmentally arched window openings with brick voussoirs and sills; and
- Limestone foundation.

Introduction and Description of Property

22 Colborne Street is located on the south side of the street, mid-block between Clergy and Sydenham Streets in downtown Kingston. The approximately 286 square metre residential property includes a two-storey limestone house, constructed circa 1866, with third storey shed dormers on both the front and rear roof pitches.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value/Statement of Significance

The property has design value or physical value because it is a rare, unique, representative or early example of a style, type, expression, material or construction method.

This property has physical/design value as a representative example of a classical limestone dwelling with a Georgian influenced simple rectangular side-gable plan. On the main façade the stones are smooth ashlar, laid in uniform courses, while the side and rear walls have hammer-dressed, uncoursed stonework. The off-set doorway is recessed with paneled reveals, with a semi-circular arched transom. The gable hood was likely a later addition.

The regular pattern of openings, with tall stone voussoirs and stone windowsills, reflects the Georgian style. The large shed dormers dominate the roof line, but the Georgian influence is still visible in the original roof profile with gable end parapets with ashlar corbels, and the stone chimney on the western roof ridgeline.

The property has contextual value because it is important in defining, maintaining or supporting the character of an area.

The property has contextual value because it is physically, functionally, visually or historically linked to its surroundings.

22 Colborne Street is significant in defining the character of the streetscape on Colborne Street, between Sydenham and Clergy Streets. This area of downtown Kingston exhibits a continual pattern of reuse and replacement of existing structures that has left examples of building from the mid-19th century to the present. The streetscapes' historic buildings vary in height from one-and-a-half to two-and-a-half storeys. The north side of Colborne Street includes an almost continuous row of exclusively red-brick 19th century duplexes and row houses; dotted by a few limestone buildings. The south side of Colborne Street is a mix of stone, frame and brick buildings, mostly single detached units. This variety in 19th century design and materiality creates a distinct character and a visually appealing and diverse streetscape.

With its shallow setback, symmetrical fenestration pattern, limestone construction, and location close to the lot lines, 22 Colborne Street shares a visual and historical relationship with its surroundings, particularly the 19th century brick houses at 9-11, 13-17, 25 and 30 Colborne Street, as well as the limestone building at 7 Colborne Street and the former Queen Street Methodist Church at 221 Queen Street. As part of this group of buildings, the subject building helps maintain the historic and eclectic character of this portion of Colborne Street.

Heritage Attributes

Key exterior elements that contribute to the property's cultural heritage value include its:

- Two-storey massing with medium pitched side gable roof with end gable parapets and stone chimney;
- Limestone construction of coursed ashlar stone (on the front/north façade) and uncoursed hammer-dressed stone (on the side elevations) limestone construction;
- Tall coursed and hammer-dressed limestone foundation;
- Regular pattern of window and door openings on the north elevation with tall stone voussoirs and stone windowsills; and
- Central doorway with recessed paneled reveals, transom window, tall stone voussoirs and stone step.

Description and Criteria for Designation
Queen Street Methodist Church Parsonage

Civic Address: 30 Colborne Street
Legal Description: Part Lot 341, Original Survey, being Part 3, 13R19716; City of Kingston, County of Frontenac
Property Roll Number: 1011 030 080 01210

Introduction and Description of Property

The former Queen Street Methodist Church Parsonage at 30 Colborne Street is located on the south side of the street, mid-block between Clergy and Sydenham Streets in downtown Kingston. The approximately 300 square metre property includes a two-and-a-half storey red brick house, with a one-and-a-half storey gable roofed rear addition. The building was built to plans by Joseph Power of Power and Sons firm for the Queen Street Methodist Church in 1880.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value/Statement of Significance

The property has design value or physical value because it is a rare, unique, representative or early example of a style, type, expression, material or construction method.

This property has physical/design value as the residence is a unique example of late Victorian residential architecture with religious architectural motifs. While the two-and-a-half storey scale, red brick construction with high limestone foundation, pitched roof, decorative off-set entranceway and grand embellishments at the cornice reflect the Victorian style, the former Parsonage has several unusual features for a Victorian residence.

The brick detailing on the house adds to its grandeur and is indicative of its importance to the members of the Queen Street Methodist Church. The red bricks on the main façade are laid in a stretcher bond pattern, while the side elevations are common bond. Projecting brick key stones and voussoirs are present above all openings. The openings are Tudor arched on the main façade and flat headed on the side elevations. The front wall includes a giant pointed arch formed by a two-storey recessed panel with windows centrally placed within. The arch design is symbolic of the open arches often separating the nave from the sanctuary in a church and thus speaks to the religious connections to this building.

One of the most distinguishing and unique features of the house is its cross-gable roof with hipped roof gables, deep dentilled cornice decorated in bas relief foliage and bracketed eaves. Beneath the modern porch is an entranceway with classical detailing above a wide wooden door with open iron grillwork. A tall French window is extant on the side elevation, indicating the possible presence of an original verandah. The windows on the second floor are large single openings, while the partial third floor includes twin windows located centrally beneath the hipped gables.

The property has historical value or associative value because it has direct associations with a theme, event, belief, person, activity, organization or institution that is significant to a community.

The Parsonage is of historical/associative value as it yields information that contributes to an understanding of the development of the Methodist church in Kingston. There have been successive churches built on the corner of Clergy and Queen Streets since the mid-1860s, each a response to fires that destroyed the earlier structure. The expansion of church operations over time led to the acquisition and construction of residential buildings. The Queen Street Methodist Church Parsonage was built to provide the residing minister a place to live where he would be in close proximity to the church and its parishioners at all times. The Reverend Joseph Hagan was the first occupant of the house. After 1958 it served as a meeting hall for members of Queen Street United Church congregation until it was sold in 1968.

The property has historical value or associative value because it demonstrates or reflects the work or ideas of an architect, artist, builder, designer or theorist who is significant to a community.

The Parsonage has historical/associative value through its association with the well-known local architectural firm of Power and Son. The Power and Son firm designed many prominent Kingston landmarks such as McIntosh Castle, Fire Hall No.1 and the Frontenac County Registry Office. They are also credited for designing several religious buildings in Kingston, such as the Cataraqui Methodist Church on Sydenham Road, St. Andrew's Church, St. John's Church Hall and the enlargement of St. George's Cathedral. The Queen Street Methodist Church Parsonage is directly attributed to Joseph Power who showed his creativity with the decorative brick and wooden features and subtle religious symbology.

The property has contextual value because it is important in defining, maintaining or supporting the character of an area.

The property has contextual value because it is physically, functionally, visually or historically linked to its surroundings.

The former Queen Street Methodist Church Parsonage is significant in defining the character of the streetscape on Colborne Street, between Sydenham and Clergy Streets. As part of this group of buildings, the subject building helps maintain the historic and eclectic character of this portion of Colborne Street.

The former Parsonage is also historically linked to the former Queen Street Methodist/United Church at 221 Queen Street (now a hotel and shared office space) and a cluster of buildings associated with the former Church operations, including the nearby church itself and Maple Cottage/Sexton house at 151 Clergy Street. Originally built on (or very near) the church property and under the direction of the church congregation, the former Parsonage is directly linked to the history and evolution of the Queen Street church.

Heritage Attributes

Key exterior elements that contribute to the property's cultural heritage value include its:

- Two-and-a-half storey massing with complex cross-gable roof with hipped gables;
- Red brick construction laid in stretcher bond (on the front/north façade) and common bond (on the side elevations);
- Two-storey recessed pointed-arch brick panel on the front wall;
- Tall coursed (front wall) and uncoursed (side walls) hammer-dressed limestone foundation with smooth ashlar sill course on the facade;
- Deep decorative wooden cornice, including dentilled frieze, large brackets decorated in bas relief foliage, bracketed eaves, wooden soffits and eaves returns;
- Tudor arched window and door openings on the north elevation with brick voussoirs and stone window sills;
- Flat headed window openings on side elevations, including a tall French window on the west side; and
- Wide central doorway with classical detailing above and a wooden door with open iron grillwork.

Henley Cameron House

Civic Address: 37 Kennedy Street
Legal Description: Part Lot 1 S/S Union St & N/S Kennedy St Plan 54 Kingston
City as in FR150913; City of Kingston, County of Frontenac
Property Roll Number: 1011 070 130 16600

Introduction and Description of Property

The Henley Cameron House at 37 Kennedy Street is located on the north side of the street, at the northwest corner with Yonge Street in the Village of Portsmouth, now City of Kingston. This approximately 358 square metre residential property contains a two-storey vernacular frame house constructed circa 1847 for Joseph Henley and altered in the 1850s by carpenter Alexander Cameron.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value/Statement of Significance

The property has design value or physical value because it is a rare, unique, representative or early example of a style, type, expression, material or construction method.

The Henley Cameron House is a representative example of a mid-19th century one-and-a-half storey wood frame Georgian cottage. Typical of the Georgian style is the side gable roof and a central unadorned entranceway, flanked by symmetrically placed windows. While this building has been modified and restored several times, its profile, massing and fenestration pattern still retain a strong Georgian character. The vinyl siding, while a modern intervention, is reminiscent of the original wooden clapboard siding.

The house was built for Joseph Henley around 1847, who then sold it to Alexander Cameron in 1855. Cameron was a Scottish emigrant and carpenter. He added several embellishments to this restrained Georgian house, including the lacy gingerbread (vergeboard) on the east and west end gables and the one storey bay window on Yonge Street, in 1879. The bay window once included elaborate vertical molding as well as paneling below the windows, and a frieze of recessed ovals with applied flower ornaments above the windows. The decorative cornice with dentils is extant.

The property has contextual value because it is important in defining, maintaining or supporting the character of an area.

The former Village of Portsmouth has a distinct heritage character, consisting of a historic village atmosphere, and a variety of built heritage resources including frame and stone dwellings from the 19th century. With its distinct Georgian design and corner location with frontage onto Yonge Street (once Main Street), the Henley Cameron House helps define and maintain the historic village character of Portsmouth.

Heritage Attributes

Key exterior elements that contribute to the property's cultural heritage value include its:

- Two-storey dwelling of wood frame construction with a limestone foundation;
- Side gable roof with decorative vergeboard at each gable end;
- Symmetrical front façade with central entranceway and rectangular window openings;
- One storey bay window on east elevation, with dentilled cornice; and
- Visibility and legibility of its heritage attributes from the road.
